SAUDI ARABIA CLAIMING AQABA

Blame for High Cost Is Argued

WASHINGTON (UP)—Congress and the administration sought today to blame each other for the rising cost of big government.

Assistant Budget Director Robert E. Merriam said Congress was at fault because it kept creating costly new programs. He told a House Civil Service Committee Friday that the administration had cut to "rock bottom" the budget for its civilian agencies.

Sen. Harry F. Byrd (D-Va), leader of the Senate economy bloc, charged the administration's "luxury budget" was "padded... all down the line" and would launch 24 new programs and expand 14 others. He called for a $5 billion budget reduction.

Merriam said the only way Congress can deflate President Eisenhower's record 71.8 billion peacetime budget was to stop handing the administration new programs and to quit enlarging others.

Rep. Richard M. Simpson (R-Pa), chairman of the GOP House Campaign Committee, said he was "stunned" by the size of the budget. He said the people no longer look to the executive but to Congress to reduce spending and cut taxes.

Other congressional news:

Farm: Chariman Jamie L. Whitten (D-Miss) of the House Agriculture Appropriations subcommittee predicted Congress would scale down the administration's farm budget for the first time since Mr. Eisenhower took office. He said he expected little help from Secretary of Agriculture Ezra T. Benson in cutting the farm budget. He indicated the subcommittee would aim its economy knife at funds requested by Benson to hire additional workers.

Educational TV: Members of the Federal Communications Commission told the Senate Commerce Committee that legislation is needed for schools to retain unused television channels indefinitely. The FCC's present policy is to allow education institutions to keep the channels "as long as they express some form of interest in their continuation."

Housing: Federal Housing Chief Albert M. Cole told a House Banking subcommittee the government is considering whether to lower required downpayments on FHA and GI housing. Cole said he was concerned that housing construction slumped last month.

Alaska: A House Interior subcommittee recessed hearings until next week on statehood for Alaska amidst charges that members were stalling in their questioning of witnesses. The hearings broke up Friday after a woman publisher from Fairbanks weepingly accused the committee of heckling her. She said she wasn't given a "fair chance" to give her views.

Navy Secretary Breaks Barrier

WASHINGTON (UP)—Navy Secretary Charles S. Thomas flew through the sonic barrier Friday in a two-seat jet trainer at the Patuxent River, Md., Naval Air Station.

The 59-year-old secretary was believed to be the first civilian service head, and one of the few civilians in any position, to fly in a plane traveling faster than sound. The plane—a Grumman FPF-8 Cougar—was flown by a Navy pilot.

"I had done pretty nearly everything else but had never been through the sound barrier before and wanted to try it," Thomas said. "It's quite a sensation."

Minor Accident Here Yesterday

A minor accident involved a car and truck on Donner avenue near Ninth street yesterday, police said today.

Thomas E. Hill, of 263 Linden avenue, Monessen, was operating the car while George Robinson, of Pricedale, was driving the other vehicle.

Beck to Give Senate Probers His Answer Sometime Wednesday

WASHINGTON (UP) — Defiant Teamsters Union President Dave Beck today planned a 96-hour delay in answering a Senate demand that he say immediately when he will turn over his personal financial records.

Beck said he will meet with his lawyers Tuesday and will inform the Senate Rackets Committee Wednesday whether he will surrender the long-sought records.

The leader of 1.4 million Teamsters said Friday night at Seattle, Wash., that he had informed the committee of his plans in a telegram to Committee Chairman John L. McClellan (D-Ark).

Beck issued his statement as a federal grand jury weighed FBI charges that Beck's heir apparent — Midwest Teamsters czar James R. Hoffa—bribed a rackets committee investigator to filch documents from secret committee files.

Hoffa's Secretary Testifies

Mrs. Dorothy Dobrescu, Hoffa's auburn-haired secretary, appeared before the grand jury for 30 minutes Friday. Afterwards, she told newsmen that she "answered everything."

The 36-year-old secretary, who is under $25,000 bond as a material witness, returned to Detroit. So did her boss.

In Chicago Friday night, AFL-CIO Secretary-Treasurer William F. Schnitzler said organized labor will wipe out corruption in its own ranks "with stern action and without panic."

He toldt he National Council of Presbyterian Men that "we know that the number of corrupt individuals in the American labor movement is indeed tiny but we know as well that even one is too many."

The AFL-CIO Ethical Practices Committee put Schnitzler's words into action earlier in the day by opening an investigation of corruption charges against the 160,000-member Bakery and Confectionary Workers Union.

McClellan demanded Friday that Beck notify him immediately when the beefy union president would turn over his personal records which the committee has been seeking for a month. McClellan said he would issue a subpena for the records if Beck did not produce them voluntarily.

Beck, Duff To Confer

Beck said in Seattle he would have no objection to a "legal and proper" subpena but wanted to confer with attorneys before giving up his records voluntarily. He said that among the attorneys with whom he will confer Tuesday will be former Sen. James H. Duff (R-Pa).

If Beck wants, he could invoke the Fifth Amendment and refuse to produce his personal records. Witnesses have done that successfully in other congressional investigations. But it would require an admission that the records contained evidence that might tend to incriminate him.

The sensational hearings on alleged Teamsters-racket links in the Pacific Northwest were in recess until Tuesday when West Coast Teamsters boss Frank W. Brewster was scheduled to resume testifying.

36 NO COMMENTS — District Attorney William Langley, of Portland, invoked the fifth amendment 36 times from the witness stand in the Senate probe of labor racketeering.

Meteor Lights Up the Skies Over Louisiana

NEW ORLEANS (UP)—A brilliant meteor 'with fire flying everywhere" streaked across southern skies Friday night and apparently crashed to earth in the barren marshlands along the Louisiana coast.

The flash of light caused by the meteor or a shower of meteors was seen from Alabama to Texas, and authorities were checking reports that the falling object hit in the vicinity of Marsh Island, just off the Louisiana coast in the Gulf of Mexico.

The Coast Guard in New Orleans said radar men tracked the object on its weather scope into the area of Marsh Island, but were unable to tell if it reached the ground or exploded in the air.

The game warden on Marsh Island, a wildlife refuge, reported by radio to the New Iberia sheriff's office that the meteor "made a hell of a noise and shook the whole island." However, he didn't see it land.

Several men from the New Iberia sheriff's office rushed to the island to see if they could locate the meteorite.

Tremors were reported throughout the vicinity in a circular area with a radius of some 30 miles and apparently centered near Franklin, La., which is located between New Iberia and Marsh Island. Police said windows were broken at some points in the circle, which encompasses New Iberia, Opelousas and Lafayette as well as Franklin.

Thousands of calls flooded police, airports, Coast Guard stations, newspapers and radio stations in six southern states as anxious residents reported the mysterious light in the sky which appeared at 11 p.m.

In southeast Alabama, Air Force M-Sgt. James W. George of Craig Air Force Base at Selma, said he saw the meteor while he was driving his car.

"It looked like a flaming aircraft...with fire flying everywhere," he said.

Death Penalty Debate

SAN QUENTIN PRISON, Calif. (UP)—A few tiny pellets of cyanide dropped in San Quentin's gas chamber produced a splash of resentment today that could end capital punishment in California.

The pellets loosed deadly gas that seeped up from a vat of hydrochloric acid to end the life of convicted kidnap-slayer Burton W. Abbott—at the same minute that Gov. Goodwin J. Knight was trying vainly to delay his death.

Knight, who was cruising off the California coast aboard the aircraft carrier Hancock, was attempting to stay Abbott's execution to give his attorneys time to raise a final question in the courts.

A telephone call to the gas chamber came after the tiny pellets had been dropped.

Chamber Must Stay Closed

Prison authorities said that the construction of the gas chamber is such that it cannot be opened after the dropping of the pellets until all gas has been pumped out—approximately an hour and a half later.

Abbott, a 28-year-old University of California accounting student, went to his death calmly, insisting to the end he was not responsible for the kidnaping and murder of Stephanie Bryan, 14-year-old Berkeley, Calif., schoolgirl in 1955.

The sequence of events in the prison was chilling. Abbott was strapped into the chair at 11:15 a. m. The pellets were dropped at 11:18 a.m. The call from the governor's clemency office in Sacramento came at 11:19 a.m.

At that minute, Abbott's battle to escape the executioner was over—but a new fight over California's controversial death penalty broke out on several fronts.

State Atty. Gen. Edmund G. Brown said that his observations led him to doubt that capital punishment has a deterrent effect on crime.

Asks 5-year Moratorium

"Rather than being a deterrent, capital punishment has given official approval to the taking of life under certain circumstances," Brown said. "Those who have neither the money for continuing legal proceedings, nor the emotional publicity attractiveness of their cases, are summarily executed as a routine matter."

The attorney general said he was of the "firm opinion" that California should consider a five-year moratorium on capital punishment.

Assemblyman Lester A. McMillan, author of bills pending in the state legislature to abolish or suspend the death sentence, said that Abbott should have been executed under the law the way it is now—but that the law is all wrong.

"He was in death row only a little more than a year, while other men in condemned row have been there seven years and are still alive," McMillan said.

Home Damaged In Youngstown

YOUNGSTOWN, Ohio (UP)—The new brick home of Joseph (Sandy) (Naples:) Youngstown restaurant owner, was damaged by a dynamite bomb, which police said had been placed in the bathroom of the ranch-type structure.

The front wall of the home was blown out by the force of the explosion, which occurred about 2 a.m. Naples had not yet moved into the house which is located on Carlotta Drive.

Police took Naples into custody for questioning, then launched an investigation. Naples, reported numbers king in Youngstown, said he had no idea who had planted the dynamite.

The bombing was the 44th to take place in the Youngstown area during the past two years.

Smock Man Killed When Hit by Car

UNIONTOWN, Pa. (UP)—George Krichnak, 69, of Smock, Fayette County, was killed when struck by an automobile Friday night on Route 40, four miles west of here.

The driver, Clarence Richey, 47, Grindstone, Fayette County, told police Krichnak stepped in front of his auto.

Nixon in Italy; Feels 'Much, Much Better'

ROME (UP) — Vice President Richard M. Nixon arrived in Italy today feeling "much, much better" than he has in the last few days.

Wearing a heavy black overcoat, he smiled broadly as he stepped from his plane at Ciampino Airport to greet Italian Premier Antonio Segni and U.S. Ambassador James D. Zellerbach.

A crowd of 2,000 cheered and a band struck up the Star Spangled Banner.

His wife, Pat, dressed in a form-fitted black coat with candy-striped ribbon ruffles around her neck and a flat black straw hat on her head, followed the vice president shaking hands with American and Italian dignitaries.

Nixon came from Tripoli, Libya, today and plans to visit Tunisia after a three day visit here and talks with Italian officials and Pope Pius XII.

His first official call today was on Italian President Giovanni Gronchi at the President's Palace.

An Italian government spokesman said Italy's top officials have nothing specific to discuss with the U.S. vice president. He said the talks would be a general "tour d'horizon."

Nixon's scheduled audience with the Pope this weekend might be considered even more important.

It is believed to be the first time a vice president of the United States has had an audience with the Pope while in office.

Vatican officials expressed the hope that Nixon and Pope Pius would discuss establishment of diplomatic relations between the United States and the Vatican — a subject of much controversy in the United States.

Centerville Man Files Petitions For Three Offices

A Centerville businessman is going to run for some office this year, but he isn't quite sure which.

At least, Mike Packrall, who makes periodic ventures into politics, launched his latest intentions under a heavy smoke screen.

He filed three petitions for Washington County Democratic nominations yesterday, for three different offices — sheriff, controller and recorder of deeds.

He can actually seek the nomination for only one of the offices but he has until a week from Monday to make a choice. Prior to that deadline he can withdraw two or even all three of the petitions.

Packrall is not backward about describing about what he is doing.

"I'm looking around to see where I can get the right kind of support," he said last night. "If I can get that support for any one of the offices, I'll withdraw the other two petitions and run."

On the other hand, Packrall isn't ebing dogmatic about running.

"If I don't get the right kind of support, I'll withdraw all three petitions," he promised.

Packrall was last on the political stage in the heavy drama of two years ago, playing a roll in the bitter Democratic battle for commissioner nominations among Frank E. Pettit, W. J. Lane, John D. Woodward and John Bevec.

Takes Steps to Bar Israel from Using Waterway

By UNITED PRESS

Saudi Arabia threatened today to "take all measures" to bar Israel from free navigation on the Gulf of Aqaba.

A Saudi Arabian announcement broadcast by Cairo Radio described the gulf — Israel's route to the Red Sea — as absolute Arab territory.

The broadcast statement said Saudi Arabia had informed United States of its position that Aqaba is a "closed Arab gulf."

In a Cairo dispatch, the New York Times said an official Egyptian source quoted Egyptian President Gamal Abdel Nasser as saying he has decided to deny use of the Suez Canal to Israeli ships. Egypt's position, the source quoted Nasser, is that Israel should not be rewarded for her "aggression."

The Saudi Arabian declaration lent new urgency to Israeli Foreign Minister Mrs. Golda Meir's flight to the United States.

She is en route for urgent talks on Egypt's assumption of civil administration in the Gaza Strip.

Mrs. Meir had warned Thursday night that "Israeli warships will insure the passage of Israeli ships" in the event of a new Arab blockade of the Aqaba Gulf.

Stops In Paris

The Israeli foreign minister unexpectedly interrupted her flying trip from Tel Aviv this morning for urgent talks in Paris with French Premier Guy Mollet. They planned joint emergency strategy in the Gaza dispute against their common enemy—Nasser.

Israeli sources said afterward that the French gave strong support to Mrs. Meir's stand. They said France was "pressuring" Israel not to knuckle under to an Egyptian take-over in the Gaza Strip.

Israeli sources in Paris said Mrs. Meir would meet Sunday in New York with U.N. Secretary General Dag Hammarskjold, who postponed his scheduled departure for the Middle East until after the week end. She is also expected to see Secretary of State John Foster Dulles during her U.S. stay.

The Israeli government's Jerusalem Radio, meanwhile, said that Mrs. Meir's emergency trip is an attempt to solve the Gaza crisis by diplomatic remedies "before exploring other possibilities."

The broadcast followed Premier David Ben-Gurion's declaration earlier this week that if political negotiations failed to prevent an Egyptian take-over of Gaza "other more forceful means" will be considered.

The Jerusalem Radio broadcast was believed to be the nearest approach yet to a warning that force would be used if Egyptian penetration of Gaza is not halted in good time.

Mrs. Meir arrived in Paris unannounced at 5 a.m. (Paris time) and called on Mollet five hours later. Her visit caught Foreign Minister Christian Pineau out of town, but Foreign Affairs Secretary-General Louis Joxe substituted for Pineau in the talks.

Old Mirrors Found

TOKYO (UP)—Japanese archeologists today announced the discovery of 13 ancient bronze Chinese mirrors, estimated to be almost 2,000 years old, in a tomb in Okayama, Central Honshu.

Ike's Cough Improves; Sea Voyage Is Soothing

ABOARD THE EISENHOWER ESCORT SHIP (UP) — President Eisenhower's cough lessened steadily as he responded today to the soothing sea air on his rest cruise in semi-tropical waters.

Navy forecasters predicted bright sunshine and balmy temperatures in the 80's today as the President's "flagship," the heavy cruiser Canberra, cruised leisurely off the northeast banks of the Bahamas southeast of Miami.

The trip apparently was doing wonders for an inflammation of his ear and a cough that has been bothering him since his inauguration Jan. 20.

Presidential News Secretary James C. Hagerty told newsmen Friday that the President is coughing "very little" and that the ear inflammation "is decreasing more each day."

Although the President was taking it easy, he kept in close touch with fast-breaking international developments. He has been receiving two radio reports daily from Washington on the foreign situation, particularly in the Middle East.

Mr. Eisenhower was headed by an indirect route for a conference in Bermuda with British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan March 21-24.

"We are going nowhere in particular," Hagerty said. "We're just looking for some warm weather."

Back in Washington, Mrs. Eisenhower also planned to take a holiday. She headed today for the Eisenhower farm at Gettysburg, Pa., with all four of the Eisenhower grandchildren in tow.

THE DAILY INDEPENDENT BUILDING REPAIRING-REMODELING NEWS

Start Remodeling in Kitchen

Many families planning to modernize their homes start with the kitchen — and for good reason. No longer the household "stepchild," the kitchen has become the heart (and often the showplace) of the home; a room full of ideas and appliances to make the day run more smoothly and pleasantly for the housewife and her family.

Thanks to modern gas and electric appliances, jobs such as laundry, garbage disposal and water heating can be brought close to cooking and dining areas without in any way spoiling the charm of the room.

Today, much of the impulse toward remodeling the kitchen arises from the need for larger kitchen counters and storage space. Therefore, when planning such a project, counters and storage space surrounding the three major work centers — sink, range and food preparation area — should be the first consideration.

The sink should be centrally located and have counters and backsplashes of a heat-resistant, stainproof and easily cleaned material, such as ceramic tile. Any storage space adjacent to or beneath the sink should be large enough to accommodate dishes, silver, towels, cleaning and dishwashing supplies, etc.

Although near the other work areas, the range should be convenient to the dining room, too. Special drawers and hooks near the range will be needed for small utensils.

Preparing baked foods, salads, and other dishes requires a spacious work area, near the refrigerator. Base and wall cabinets should provide space for mixers, bowls and casseroles, also drawers for spatulas, measuring cups and other preparation utensils.

An interesting example of how careful planning can transform an out-dated, space-wasting kitchchen into one that is the very model of modern attractiveness and efficiency is illustrated in the "before and after" photos shown here of the kitchen of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Beinhart, of Cincinnati, Ohio.

Space formerly wasted has been utilized to its full capacity for storage behind cabinet doors that flick open at the slightest nudge. Woodwork that constantly needed repainting and was subject to rotting has been replaced by tough, easily washed Formica which appears on walls, countertops and window-box.

Thus, at relatively small cost, the Beinharts have a kitchen that is easily washed; one that effectively utilizes all available space.

Millions Free of Installment Debt

Thirty million U. S. families are free of installment debt, reports the National Foundation for Consumer Credit, while an estimated 24,000,000 families have installment obligations averaging $500 per family, mostly for automobiles.

Tests Help 'Weather' Roofing

Scientists at the National Bureau of Standards have subjected asphalt roofing to 20 years of harsh "weathering" in little more than ten months.

The tests were made in a device called an "accelerated durability" machine, which poured concentrated light, heat, and "rain" on the shingles to test their durability.

The machine — one of a number used by the scientists in their constant search to find better materials to make better homes — is a large rotating drum. The roofing material was attached to the inner sides of the drum, which was then totated constantly through 22 hour-long cycles a day. Each cycle consisted of 51 minuted of ultra-violet light for heat and "sunlight" and nine minutes of light accompanied by a cold-water spray of "rain."

After tests ranging up to 300 days, the research team made their data available to roofing manufacturers for use in maintaining the high quality of asphalt shingles and roll roofing.

Wood posts that will rest on concrete, masonry, or other wood can be protected from dampness by cementing a piece of asphalt roofing to the bottom of the post.

Basements and Attics Are Sites For Fire Traps

Basement and attics in many homes are veritable fire traps because they are collection points for rubbish and trash. Fire safety officials urge that all such materials be removed from houses at regular intervals.

This recommendation also applies to such things as old furniture, magazines, newspapers, empty paint cans and many other items which accumulate in utility and storage rooms.

One of the few safe ways to store flammable materials is to keep them safely confined in covered steel containers. Safety officials suggest the use of galvanized steel garbage cans. These are equipped with snug-fitting covers.

In disposing of trash, the householder is warned against using open bonfires. Many destructive fires are caused by gusts of wind spreading the contents of trash fires to nearby roof tops and other flamable places.

A safe procedure is to use a steel rubbish burner. These containers permit rubbish to burn safely within the confines of a covered galvanized steel can.

No Maintenance In Cedar Closet

One of the most pleasant aspects of lining a clothes closet with aromatic red cedar closet lining is the lack of maintenance. Nearly everyone knows about the rose-colored beauty of the wood, and its fragrant aroma, so pleasant to people and repellent to moths, but few realize how little work is necessary to keep cedar beautiful and effective.

No paint or varnish is needed or desired since that would seal in the moth-repelling cedar fumes. Tough, durable cedar never needs a protective coating and will remain aromatic and attractive for many years. If, occasionally, a grayish film forms on the surface of the wood, just wipe it off with a damp cloth to restore the beauty and aroma. The gray film is simply the residue from the rich cedar oil.

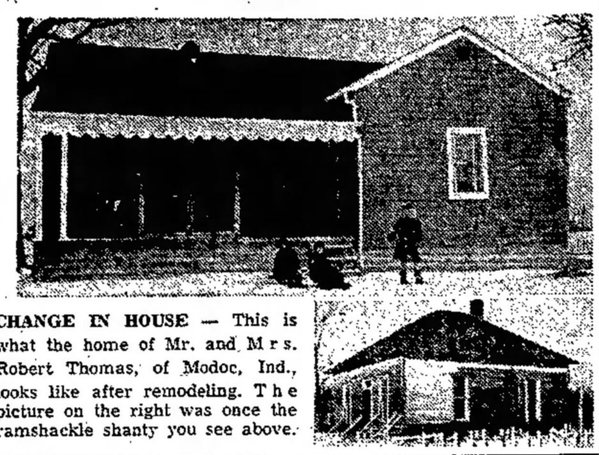
Aging House Can Often Be Remodeled

Frequently when an aging house is up for sale, it has such a weathered, ramshackle look that it seems no amount of remodeling could make it habitable.

This was the feeling experienced by Mr. and Mrs. Robert Thomas when they caught their first glimpse of a farm house on 40 acres of land near their home town of Modoc, Ind.

But Thomas, a building materials dealer in Modoc, knew that modern construction materials and techniques can work miracles with almost any old house. He also knew that a sturdy, old house usually can be purchased and remodeled for much less money per square foot of living space than it would cost to build a new home.

After an inspection revealed the house and barn were solidly built, the Thomases bought the property and set to work. In choosing products for the remodeling, Thomas called upon all his experience with building materials to be sure of getting the longest and most satisfactory service.



CHANGE IN HOUSE — This is what the home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Thomas, of Modoc, Ind., looks like after remodeling. The picture on the right was once the ramshackle shanty you see above.

For example, after a 36- by 12-foot addition was completed, he specified that a colorful new roof of fire-resistant asphalt shingles be applied on the entire house. On the old portion, time and labor were saved by applying the new shingles directly over the old roofing.

Thomas also chose thick batts of mineral wool insulation for the walls and ceilings of the addition and installed them himself. The mineral wool, he knew, would make his family more comfortable in winter and summer by blocking the passage of heat, and probably would pay for itself within a few years in savings on fuel.

Their remodeling completed, the Thomases have a modern roomy home with three bedrooms, a living and dining room, bath, up-to-date kitchen with snack bar and breakfast nook, a recreation room in the attic, and a utility room.

The entire family agrees that moving to the country was a good idea.

Dock Workers Walk Off Jobs In Great Britain

LONDON (UP)—Shipyard workers walked off their jobs today in the start of what could be Britain's biggest labor strike since the depression days of 30 years ago.

The docks became idle when workers ended their last shifts early this morning and there was no one to replace them.

Some 200,000 shipyard workers are involved in the strike for a 10 per cent pay raise. Phase two of the strike of the Confederation of Shipbuilding and Engineering Unions begins next Saturday when some 2.5 million engineers are scheduled to walk out.

If all the members of the confederation are on strike at the same time it would become Britain's biggest work stoppage since the disastrous general strike of 1926.

Industries that would be affected by the engineers strike produce 40 per cent of Britain's vital exports.

BONN, Germany (UP)—U.S troops in Germany are equipped with atomic warheads, a West German defense ministry spokesman announced today.

'Ghost' Blamed By Villagers For Red Lake

CASTELGANDOLFO, Italy (UP) —Frightened villagers insisted today "the ghost of the headless woman" was responsible for turning the waters of Lake Albano from their usual blue to a bright blood red.

They ignored the more scientific explanation offered by the Central Hydro-Biology Institute of the Agriculture Ministry: Billions of red seaweeds so small they can be seen only with a powerful microscope.

Superstitious peasants of the lakeside villages linked the lake's bloody color with the mystery murder of Sicilian housemaid Antonietta Longo in July, 1955.

"It's her blood crying out for vengeance," one shuddering old man said.

A nude and beheaded body, identified after long investigation as that of the 30-year-old maid, was found in the woods near the lake July 13 Neither her head nor her murderer ever were found.

WHY BUY A PRETTY PROMISE?

Beautiful Lots Are Available in Your Long Established Monument Cemeteries

Undeveloped cemeteries are attempting to sell lots to people in this community on a basis of artists' drawings of what the grounds may look like at some indefinite future time

These same cemeteries forbid you to follow the traditional American custom of erecting a suitable monument of granite or marble to your loved ones. They permit only flat metal markers.

If the appearance of your family cemetery lot or burial estate, and the proper identification of it, are as important to you as they are to most people in town, you'll locate it in an established traditional monument cemetery...where beauty is an actuality...not a vague promise...and where you can express your sentiment by erecting a beautiful and lasting monument.

Forgiveness

Our verdict had been given. With a word of commendation the Judge discharged us, the ladies and gentlemen of the jury. The completed duty brought little relief. Instead there was a burden, a spiritual weight. Days of testimony and hours of deliberation had given an oppressive sense of the world's sin and suffering.

The door of my church was open and I slipped inside. I was alone as the rays of the setting sun enhanced the rich colors of the windows. All was quiet. I dropped to my knees.

Gradually in the solemn beauty of that sacred place I found peace. Here was sanctuary for me and for all who would come in faith believing.

Thankfully I arose; my heart and mind felt calm and refreshed. I could go home now, but I would return often. In glad fellowship with God's people I would worship the Christ who died that men might be forgiven.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL . . . ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship It is a storehouse of spiritual values Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church They are (1) For his own sake (2) For his children s sake (3) For the sake of his community and nation (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

State Tax Timetable Off Stride

HARRISBURG (UP) — A State Senate Republican leader said today the GOP timetable for General Assembly passage of its Commonwealth tax program could "possibly" be thrown off stride next week by his own party.

Sen. Edward J. Kessler (R-Lancaster), chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, said his party colleagues in the chamber may come up with proposed amendments to the 3 per cent sales tax. Senate Democrats already have promised to offer revisions Monday.

"Our fellows will be under terrific pressure from interested groups during the week end," Kessler said. He did not identify the "interested groups" indicating it would be up to a GOP leaders conference Sunday night and a party caucus early Monday to decide whether any further Republican amendments would be projected. The GOP holds a 27-23 majority in the Senate and has voted party lines on important issues.

Kessler wrote proposed exemptions to the 3 per cent sales tax last week which moved the Democratic minority to charge the proposals were "bonanzas" for manufacturers, shipbuilders and public utilities.

Senate Minority Leader John H. Dent (D-Westmoreland) said the exemptions to industry would result in individual taxpayers paying about 73 per cent of the sales tax.

"We are getting into the position where no one will pay the tax except the people themselves," Dent said.

Exemptions would be extended under the proposed amendment to include all manufacturing, mining and research equipment used in production from the first stage to the final packaging. Other exemptions would include printing equipment, supplies and materials and building foundations for productive machinery and equipment.

The exemption amendment originally was retroactive to May, 1956 but Kessler knocked out that feature after Dent's critical speech on the Senate floor.

Kessler said the retroactive feature was removed at the insistence of the Republican caucus to "satisfy Dent and besides the companies involved are big enough to take their tax problems to court."

The tax bills, previously passed by the House, were scheduled to pass the Senate last week but the Republicans yielded to Democratic charges of "steamroller tactics" and delayed action.

A total of eight tax bills, including the $995-million General Fund "tax package" and $300-million worth of legislation dropping the gasoline tax to five cents, will be up for Senate action Monday.

Dent said he would have counter amendments to the sales tax law ready to combat what he termed a "raid on the state treasury.

The Senate returns at 4 p.m. and the House at 4:30 p.m. Monday.

"LITTLE BIT OF IRELAND" ON ST. PATRICK'S DAY — Tomorrow is St. Patrick's Day and what could be more appropriate for this great day for the Irish than a picture of three lovely colleens—the McGuire Sisters, of television fame. These three lasses from Miamisburg, O., are in the district for a nine-day appearance at Twin Coaches on Route 51. Tony Calderone, owner of the night club, is presenting the sisters (l. to r.), Dorothy, Phyllis and Chris, with a four-leaf clover for "good luck" on St. Patrick's Day. Incidentally, Calderone is changing his name to "O'Calderone" for the occasion.

Two Oil City Men Drown in Allegheny River

OIL CITY, Pa. (UP)—Two Oil City men drowned in the Allegheny River Friday night when their rowboat, loaded with junk, took water and sank under the State Street Bridge.

The men, Donald Norman, 23, and Taylor Knight Jr., 26, tried to bail out the boat and throw the junk over the side but the water rose too swiftly.

When the boat sank Knight went under and never came to the surface. Norman floated downstream a quarter mile, with passersby along the shore shouting encouragement and instructions, but disappeared under the surface of the river near the Oil City Sand and Gravel Company.

Norman was married and the father of a six-weeks-old child.

A search will be made for the victims' bodies.

Garbage Trucks Used to Haul Guns in Cuba

HAVANA (UP)—Police charged today that garbage collectors of the suburban Miramar Property Owners Assn. used their trucks to run guns and ammunition for revolutionaries who tried to assassinate President Fulgencio Batista Wednesday.

Authorities held the association's entire staff of collectors for questioning after finding 600 sticks of dynamite, two artillery shells and a machine gun tripod dumped in 10 feet of water along the Miramar shoreline.

Public funerals were held Friday for members of Batista's guard who were killed in Wednesday's attack on the presidential palace. The funeral of a rebel leader, former congressman Menelao Mora, was held a few hours later and speakers harshly criticized the government.

Thirty-nine persons were killed in the Wednesday attack and in scattered fighting which followed it.

A government official expressed regret Friday over the death of American tourist Peter Korenda of Clifton, J., who was hit by a stray bullet. The official said the government could not be held responsible.

Pennsy Freight Train Derailed

STEUBENVILLE, Ohio (UP)—The Pennsylvania Railroad expected to reopen both tracks today on its main east-west line, blocked by a freight train derailment 10 miles west of here.

No one was injured when a fast freight left the tracks Friday at Millers Station Crossing, spilling 30 cars over the right-of-way and tearing up some 2,500 feet of track.

The railroad said one track was expected to be opened at about 10 a.m. EST, and the other at 2 p.m.

Erie District Charged with Tax Evasion

ERIE, Pa. (UP)—J. F. Baine, assistant regional sales tax director, promised today to continue an accelerated audit of the Erie office where "an astonishing rate of non-compliance" with the state's 3 per cent sales tax has been uncovered.

Baine said the Erie district, comprising Erie and Crawford counties, has "cases of delinquency which are, without question, beyond comparison with any other district in the Commonwealth."

He said criminal charges of tax evasion were being prepared against a half dozen of the worst offenders and that property liens have been filed against other delinquent taxpayers.

Baine, here on a study trip from the Pittsburgh office, said many evaders escaped detection because of an understaffed, poorly administered Erie office. He said the office director, James Carlin, has been demoted to auditor.

The sales tax director said a six day audit revealed some persons who had failed to even register for the state's old 1 per cent sales tax which expired last summer. Baine also said the audit brought in more taxes than had been collected in the two years the Erie office has been in operation.

Judy Garland Sues CBS for Million Dollars

NEW YORK (UP)—Singer Judy Garland Friday sued the Columbia Broadcasting System for $1,393,333, charging libel and breach of contract.

Miss Garland's federal court suit asked $1 million in libel damages. The remainder was for alleged breach of contract.

The singer-actress accused CBS of authorizing and inducing "publication of false and defamatory matter in newspapers and other publications."

Specifically, Miss Garland charged the network had authorized statements saying she "is known for her highly developed inferiority complex" and that she does "not want to work because something is bothering her."

These statements, she said, impaired her character and the esteem she held as a performer and "seriously prejudiced" her ability to obtain employments."

Workers Ignore Pleas to Return To Linde Jobs

KITTANNING, Pa. (UP)—Supervisory personnel began round-the-clock operations at the strike-bound Linde Air Products Co plant today after workers ignored a published plea to return to their jobs.

A company spokesman said a "number" of employes gathered at the gates but none crossed picket lines set up by the AFL-CIO Oil, Chemical and Atomics Workers Union.

The spokesman said that by midnight tonight about half of the normal production would be resumed by 25 supervisory employes.

Plant Manager E. M. Boyher, in a newspaper advertisement published Friday, invited all employes to return to work on the 8 a.m. shift today and promised adequate protection.

The advertisement said "disciplinary action" would be taken against "employes who engaged in violence or other illegal acts in connection with the strike."

Some 160 production workers walked out Jan. 25 in a dispute between the union and company over contract issues. Union members also went on strike at plants in Tonawanda, N.Y.,; Youngstown, Ohio; Moundsville, W. Va., and Essington, Pa.

Civic Music Gains

THE MONESSEN-Belle Vernon Civic Music Association this week concluded its fifth annual series of concerts with the appearance in recital of Claramae Turner, contralto. We have the impression that this season's programs have been of unusually excellent quality even though, probably due to some conflicts, the attendance at the concluding number was not up to the usual level.

The Civic Music plan has demonstrated, we think all concerned agree, that it can provide this community year-in and year-out with musical entertainment of a very high order. Moreover, it is amply clear that some such arrangement, in which the audience is assembled before heavy financial commitments are made, is the only practical way such entertainment can be brought to small and medium-sized communities. The economics of the situation are such that, without such a plan as Civic Music, the community is simply not going to enjoy on any regular basis the talents of recognized artists.

As is true with most endeavors of a civic and cultural nature, the chief limitation on Civic Music is the degree of public participation. And it is just because the membership of the Monessen-Belle Vernon Association this season has been the highest in its history that its programs have been of uniformly high quality. This is done with money — not mirrors.

But even with this record membership, Civic Music has still been shy by about 100 members of the 1,000-seat capacity of the Monessen High School auditorium, where the concerts are given. If in its next membership campaign in the fall, this capacity can be reached, the certain result would be a series of programs such as is available only in the largest cities.

The value of this to the cultural life of the district makes it deserve a strenuous effort and willing public support.

Tax Revision Coming

FOR OVER a year now Allegheny County has been the only county in Pennsylvania in which it has been legal to levy taxes against industrial machinery and equipment. A new law became effective in January, 1956 which provided that machinery and equipment could no longer be regarded as real estate as had been the practice in many counties, including Westmoreland, for years.

Now there is agitation in Allegheny County for the elimination of taxes on machinery on the ground that such taxes operate to discourage industrial expansion, which they undoubtedly do. But there is also opposition to the move on the ground that it would have a "crippling effect" on many municipalities which get major portions of their revenues from the taxes paid by their industries on real estate, including machinery. And undoubtedly there is something to be said for this point of view, too.

In Westmoreland County the problem has been met, at least temporarily, by a more or less informal and extra-legal arrangement between most of the major industries and the county's taxing authorities whereby the industries simply continue to pay taxes on their former evaluations except that new equipment, as it is acquired, is not being added to the taxable property.

All concerned must realize, however, that this is a stop-gap and not a solution. And the day is surely coming when Westmoreland County will be forced into a sweeping revision of its tax policies with respect to real estate.

Why Easter Seals?

IN AMERICA the privilege of doing something voluntarily for others is cherished as an individual freedom. The satisfactions which come through meeting a need are among the richest rewards we know.

Since 1951 the Westmoreland County Society for Crippled Children & Adults, Inc., has been performing a valuable welfare service by widening the opportunities of handicapped persons in this area. Through its annual Easter Seal campaign, now in progress, the Society gathers the voluntary contributions of Westmoreland people and converts them into locally available services for handicapped.

A professionally staffed treatment center, parent counseling, summer camp for crippled children, braces and other special devices, diagnostic clinics, testing and therapy are some of the services which the Easter Seal organization make possible in Westmoreland County at the present time.

Public response to the Easter Seal appeal will maintain and improve services for the handicapped and will make the services available to more and more people who need them.

Merry-Go-Round—

Truman Sore As Brother Is Probed

By DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON — The Eisenhower administration has been investigating Harry Truman's brother, Vivian, and it has made the ex-President of the United States see red. He cussed out the investigator to his face in language so purple it can't be printed here. The mildest name Mr. Truman called the agent from Washington was "anthead."

Mr. Pearson

Behind the investigation was an old Missouri fued waged by ex-Congressman Jeff Hillelson of Kansas City against the ex-President, the ex-President's kin, and anyone associated with the name of Truman.

Hillelson is a Republican who was elected to Congress in the 1952 GOP landslide on the plea that he was a poor but honest grocery clerk, though actually he was married to the Goetz brewing fortune. After serving an unspectacular one term in Congress during which he distinguished himself chiefly by taking a junket to western Europe, he was reured by the voters, and since then has been looking for a federal job. Particularly he has had his eye on the job held by June Holloway, lifelong friend of Truman, as Kansas City manager of the General Services Administration.

Hillelson has now won his battle and Holloway is being transferred to Seattle. However, it took him a long time, plus an investigation of Truman's brother to win.

Harry Truman Explodes

Throughout his congressional term, Hillelson kept up a steady bombardment against Holloway. As fast as one charge was investigated and disproved, Hillelson would fire another. After several investigations had failed, he called on then—GSA administrator Ed Mansure and insisted: "There must be some skulduggery in that region."

To placate him, Mansure let Hillelson search the government files himself for political dirt. The Congressman picked out 30 cases that looked suspicious to him, including one that involved Vivian Truman in alleged influence peddling.

Each case was thoroughly investigated by the Eisenhower administration, which sent a special investigator to Kansas City to run down every possible lead. After the investigator questioned Vivian Truman, Harry hit the roof.

He summoned the agent to his Kansas City office. Out of respect for the ex-President, the man showed up and was greeted at the door wit ha verbal blast in the fiery Truman tradition. The expletives flew so fast that the investigator could only stutter.

In the end, the allegations proved to be false. Both June Holloway and Vivian Truman were completely cleared. Holloway was kept on the job, and Hillelson was defeated for re-election.

Mansure suspected that Hillelson had anticipated his defeat and that all he really wanted was Holloway's job. However, Mansure, who followed the merit system in protecting public servants, has now been replaced by Franklin Floete, who agreed in advance to hire all the loyal Republicans he could find room for in the big, sprawling General Services Administration.

As a civil service employ, Holloway couldn't be fired without cause. So he will be transferred away from his home, Kansas City, to Seattle, in the hope that he will quit. This will leave the Kansas City job open finally to Hillelson.

AFL-CIO boss George Meany has promised senators that he will expel the Teamsters from the national labor organization if the evidence before the Senate calls for it. He has already taken steps to suspend three small unions, he said, and he intends to treat big and little unions alike. Arkansas' stern Sen. John McClellan, who is running the labor racketeering investigation, was invited to the opening of the plush, $15,000,000 Sheraton Hotel in Philadelphia. By the time he arrived, the hotel was jammed full. The Sheraton management offered to put McClellan up in another hotel, but he walked out in a huff and caught the next train back to Washington. The Sheraton paid the travel expenses of all guests invited to the openings — except members of Congress. The management didn't want to be accused of "bribing" Congress . . . Stripper Gypsy Rose Lee brought her favorite cat and its three kittens to the Sheraton opening. She left early because the cat had a sick spell . . . Secretary of State Dulles seems to have recovered from his operation, but his wife has been slipping off for unannounced visits to the Army's Walter Reed Hospital.

Power of the Chairman

The power of the congressman who presides over a congressional hearing is one not altogether appreciated by the public. The other day, Democratic congressmen threw a breakfast in honor of their colleague, Ohio's veteran Mike Kirwan. The day before the breakfast, Kirwan ran into California's Congressman James Roosevelt alighting from a taxi. The following private conversation took place:

Kirwan: "You're coming to the breakfast tomorrow morning, aren't you, Jimmy?"

Roosevelt: "I would love to come, but I've made another appointment for tomorrow morning, so I won't be able to make it."

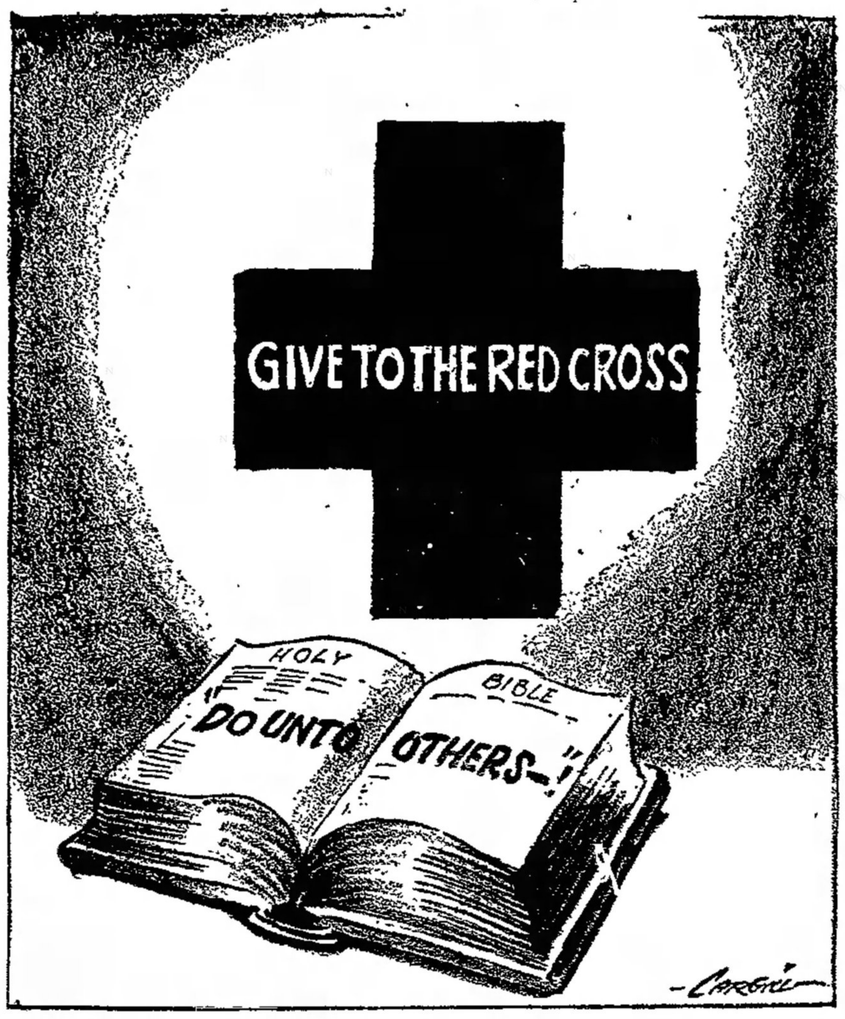
Kirwan: "You are testifying before my committee next week on the water project you're interested in, isn't that right?"

Roosevelt: "Yes."

Kirwan: You're coming to my breakfast in the morning, aren't you?"

Roosevelt: "Oh, yes., I'll be there."

Four Square Gospel



From Washington—

Both Parties Are Scared

By ROSCOE DRUMMOND

Both the Democratic and Republican parties appear to be preparing for the oncoming congressional elections confident that the odds are against them.

This sounds paradoxical, but the truth is that a good pessimistic case can be made for both sides.

Mr. Drummond

You can get a feeling for the devastating size of the Republican presidential victory only when you look at some of the detailed voting results which do not come out until months after the election — such revealing details as these:

The Democratic presidential tickets won in only 918 counties out of a national total of 3,068 and only 155 of these counties were outside the 13 Southern states.

The 1956 Republican vote topped 1952 in 32 states. Of the 16 states in which the Democrats improved their percentage of the presidential vote, only one — Michigan — lay east of the Mississippi.

As to the much-welcomed "farm revolt," the Democrats did improve their position in the Middle West, but the improvement is hardly visible to the microscope: that is, the Democrats actually carried only 92 of the area's 1,056 counties last fall — less than a fourth as many as in 1948.

Question for GOP

All of this, of course, leaves the Republicans with the agonizing question: If they can't win Congress when the Democratic presidential ticket is being ploughed under in this manner, what chance have they got next fall when the presidency is not at stake?

But the Democrats are wringing their hands, too, and they can cite evidence to justify their tears. To banish wishful thinking, the Democratic National Committee has just circulated to Democratic members of Congress a study which doesn't spare the bad news.

It warns against being enamored with the talk of "basic party strength" as evidenced in the congressional victory, and points to several factors indicating that Democratic party strength may be declining.

Although Democratic candidates for Congress did better last fall than they did in 1952, they did worse than they did in 1954. The Democratic party got 52.6 per cent of the congressional vote in 1954, only 51.3 last fall.

There are 20 so-called "swing states," that is, states which pretty regularly move from party to party. Of the 314 congressional seats in this contested territory the Democrats won only 145 in 1956. The 24 states in which the Democrats won congressional majorities last year account for only 212 electoral votes; it takes 266 to elect a President.

Cities Worry Democrats

At this point the Democratic researchers come to their most painful finding — the steady and sharp decline in urban support for the party over the past decade.

In the 20 critical "swing states" the Democrats last fall won a majority of the presidential vote in only 16 of the 118 most populous counties. When you compare that with what happened in the three earlier presidential elections you see why Democrats call it "ominous." In 1952 they won 30, in 1948 they won 83 and in 1944 they won 80 of the most populous counties.

The reason this development scares the Democratic leaders is that it means that bloc-voting is passing from the American political scene and the Democratic party has been the largest beneficiary of bloc-voting from 1932 to 1948 — the urban labor vote, the farm vote, the Southern vote.

This seems to me a good thing because it means that large groups of Americans are voting for objectives larger than their immediate interest. Certainly the Eisenhower administration did not win the majority of the labor vote, as it did last fall, by being a "labor administration."

If both parties face next year's fight for Congress aware that the other can win, this means that either can win.

Notes and Comment—

End of the Two-party System in Monessen

By HARRY R. PORE, Jr.

Unless something unforeseen develops over this weekend, the Republican party will, for all practical purposes and for this year at least, have gone out of business in the City of Monessen.

At the time this is written, no Republican candidates are in the field for any of the City offices nor for the two positions to be filled on the School Board. So when the Republican voters of Monessen, of whom there are about 1,200, go to their polling places on primary election day, May 21, they will be confronted by a total blank on the voting machines except for county offices.

So far as can be recalled, this has never happened before. And while I have done no research on the matter, I think it would be a safe bet that Monessen is the only city in the 20,000 population class in Pennsylvania which has completely abandoned the two-party system so far as local government is concerned.

I wonder how many of our people fully appreciate the seriousness of this development. Just consider for a moment a few of the things it means.

It means that the freedom of choice of all of our citizens has been drastically reduced. For all practical purposes our local elections will be decided in the Democratic primary.

Nothing New

Well, you ask, what's so startling about this—isn't that the way it's been here for years? Hasn't it been ten years or more since we had an elected Republican official in the City Hall?

True. But my point is that the people still have had that opportunity which the general election provides to have another and final say about who's going to direct their affairs. Whether they cared to exercise that second choice or simply preferred to ratify the action of the Democratic voters in their primary, they still have had the choice.

Some may feel that the Democratic party provides enough leeway for the expression of opposing views. They can point to the fact, for instance, that there will be at least three candidates for Mayor in the Democratic primary and presumably they will be giving our municipal problems a thorough airing in their contest. Isn't that enough?

No, it isn't. Because for one thing, this disenfranchises the 1,200 citizens who prefer to be enrolled as Republicans. And for another, primary elections as a normal thing are controlled by party organizations, and only rarely does an independent candidate have a serious chance regardless of his merits. Organization "slates", including the weakest candidates, tend to prevail.

So if you take the second party out of the picture entirely in any community, you inevitably tighten the hold of the entrenched organization of the other party. You enable it to concentrate its power still further to smother the opposition in its own primary, and the net effect is to make more improbable than ever any change in the character and policies of the local government even if and when the people decide such change is desirable.

Wants Choice Preserved

In thus pointing out the danger involved in a collapse of the two-party system, I take the risk of having it said that what I really want is to see the long Democratic supremacy here come to an end and the Republicans installed in power.

But while I freely acknowledge that I am registered as a Republican, the reader will just have to take my word for it that I do not think either of the parties has a monopoly of virtue and wisdom anywhere or at any time. And while there is no way to prove it, when I go into a voting booth, I practice what I preach. I could count on the fingers of one hand the general elections of the last 20 years at which I have voted a straight party ticket — and have a couple of fingers left over.

No, what I want is that the people — all the people — shall have the maximum freedom of choice when making decisions about their government. And I am convinced that, no matter in what guise we restrict this freedom, by restricting it we cripple the democratic process which is our heritage.

If you ask me what a political party is to do when it is reduced in numbers to the short end of seven to one and hasn't been able to elect an official for a decade, I'm frank to admit I don't know. Not exactly, anyway.

But I am loath to believe that any political organization is so good that it deserves a standing majority of seven to one or that any minority party is so poor that it needs to remain indefinitely in the ratio of one to seven.

Just on the face of it, and weak as the Republican party has been in Monessen, I think even 1,200 people should find within their ranks the leadership and interest needed to keep their party in business. And I have the idea, too, that if they were to make a serious start on this they would find that the 7-to-1 imbalance between the parties does not represent the considered, unchangeable convictions of the citizenship.

Song of the Brook Is Friendliest in Nature

By JOHN H. DAY

The most friendly voice in Nature is the song of the brook. Neither the wind in the pines nor the voice of the sea can compare with this for true sociability. There is always the sense of something remote, something mystical, in the music of the restless sea and the pine-girt headlands. But the song of the brook is cheerfulness itself. Its genial nature is irresistible. With small talk and gay gossip it gradually prevails over any whim and wins the stroller on its banks to a sociable and contented mood.

No two brooks are alike. Each has its own strongly defined personality, as result of the character of the country through which it flows. Your creek flowing sluggishly through the alluvial bottomlands is insipid compared to the joyous songsters shouldering their way to it down through the hills. These little fellows are the prima donnas, producing in faultless tones the gorgeous arias of the Great Composer.

The mountain brook is a strong, salient personality which dominates the landscape. It sweeps in bold curves about the base of the cliffs and contracts into a mere mill race cut in the distorted schist and gneiss. Its suggestion is wholly of savage strength, a rude, forceful thing of the wilderness; its song a masterful strain, a triumphant chant of power.

The Merrier Streams

I prefer the merry little streams of the hill country, tinkling along in the sunlight. Now these waterways sing the marching songs of the surging springtide, running black under the belated ice coatings or yellow through the sun-warmed meadows. In summer these brooks sing a sleepy song which lures the countryman to stretch out for a delicious nap underneath one of their sycamores.

Throughout the year a brook is captivating. It is as companionable as a child, and as changeful. It hints at mysteries. But in all its garrulous babbling it tells no secrets other than its own. You have to find out for yourself where the wild things come down to drink and where the birds take their baths. Not from the brook will you learn where the choicest wild flowers lurk.

It is a curious thing to hear the different voices of a brook as it courses down a woodland ravine. It seems inhabited by a number of spirits throughout its length, some whispering, some laughing, others singing. Not only are the voices pitched in various keys but the quality of tone differs essentially. At one place it fairly shouts. Again it becomes confidential, murmuring in intimate liquid conversation.

Every brook is a sad gad-about. It refuses absolutely to have anything to do with the mathematician's straight lines. It has a mind of its own and goes by intuition. A bright stream in Syria was named Meander and ever since every brook has followed the lead of its namesake. A brook will loiter along, spending a half day meandering delightfully about a field which it might cut through in a jiffy.

Like Human Life

Actually the brook represents the best type of human life. Here is the steep hillside of youth, the wild dash, the splashing through and under and between difficulties. Then the firm, steady flow down the tranquil slope of middle age. Finally comes the safe passing into the unknown. The man who faces life with a song in his heart, as the brook faces every barrier with a song on its lips, will wear down every obstacle in his course to the broad river of contentment.

Never walk across lots when a brook is in your neighborhood, but follow its meandering course as do the sycamores. You will find enchantment such as Merlin the magician never knew. A brook brews its own magic. You will be led afield where the friendly voices of the brook will make you glad an dwhere every new step will be a new delight, as like Merlin you follow the gleam.

"In Nature's open book
An epic is the sea.
A lyric is the brook:—
Lyrics for me!"

ON THE BALL

No Truth to MHS Scouting Rumors

There's NO truth to that rumor now spreading through the valley that Monessen High coach Frank Janosik supplied Sharon with scouting reports on Charleroi in perparation for tonight's semi-final WPIAL tournament tussle. According to the whispers, Frank even mailed films of the recent Greyhound-Cougar game to the Sharon coaching staff. However the whole report is ridiculous, according to Janosik. Here's what he has to say: "I have not mailed any films to Sharon. As a matter of fact, I have not even talked to any of the Sharon coaches. Due to certain circumstances, I have been able to see only the Charleroi games in the current tournament. I would never think of offering scouting reports on any valley team."

* * *

Incidentally Frank readily admits that he sent LAST YEAR'S Charleroi-Monessen films to Johnstown to help in the promotion of the past holiday tourney, which was eventually won by the Cougars. "I did it at the request of Johnstown coach Paul Abele, a long-time friend," reports Janosik. "Actually films are of little value when it comes to scouting, and certainly movies from the previous season hardly mean much." . . . Speaking of tonight's Charleroi-Sharon game, a surprising number of fans are sticking with the Cougars to pull an upset. They reason that the Charleroians are ready to explode.

* * *

WPIAL May Stage Tourney at Monessen

Here's another rumor which does have a solid foundation in fact: The WPIAL is seriously considering the Monessen High gym as the site for next year's early-round tournament games. As we get it, top WPIAL brass have already made inquiries into the parking situation here. That's their one big concern about the Monessen layout . . . By the way, the main reason the WPIAL biggies reportedly want out of the Pitt Field House (at least for early tourney games) is not the $600 rental. It seems the schoolmen are concerned over the dangerous condition of the dust-covered floor. As matters stand now, the WPIAL would probably be forced into playing both the semi-finals and finals at the Field House because of the seating capacity. However all other tourney tussles could be staged just as easily at Monessen. Or several other large high school gyms, for that matter.

* * *

Mike Young, the former MHS athlete, has reported for spring drills at the Cincinnati Redleg training site in Brooksville, Fla. . . . Bud Gaskill, pro at Nemacolin Country Club, fired a nifty 69 in the Gulf Coast Invitational Tournament in Mississippii the other day. Gaskill is still touring with the pros . . . Charles Muchoney has been named to the baseball vacancy at Brownsville created by the departure of Bert Sutton . . . Ron Forsythe, son of West Brownsville burgess James Forsythe, will report next week to the Brooklyn Dodgers rookie camp at Vero Beach. Forsythe expects to be assigned eventually to Pueblo, Colo.

Greyhound Fans Swarm to Field House

Monessen isn't represented in the current WPIAL Basketball Tournament, but you wouldn't know it by looking over the Field House crowds. There are a whole raft of Monessen fans following every tourney tussle . . . The WPIAL Basketball Committee refers to Bellmar principal Raymond Barker as its "travelling man." Barker has directed most of this year's tourney games staged outside of the Pitt Field House . . . Speaking of the WPIAL committee, a member of that group politely reminded a district sportscaster to be careful of a tape-recording he was cutting during a recent game. The Committee forbids rebroadcast of games since a pretty nice sum of money is realized through radio fees.

Irish Still Figure In World of Sports

By OSCAR FRALEY

NEW YORK (UP)—Take it from "Two - Shillelagh" O'Fraley, the next time somebody asks what happened to the Irish in sports slug the spalpeen with statistics.

There are those who moan for the days of John L. Sullivan and ask, like pixillated pixies, what ever happened to the likes of the Corbetts and the Loughrans. It's in a rut, they are.

For when you look over the sporting lists you'll find more names from the Ould Sod than you ever believed possible.

Clubs Have Irish

Take baseball, now. There's not a club without a classy Celt. The champions of the world, the Irish Yankees, have "The Mick," known also as O'Mantle, plus such as Tommy Byrne, Jim O'Reilly and Andy Carey. Chicago's strength is pitching, naturally, with Donovan, Flanigan and Keegan while the Red Sox have a complete Sullivan battery.

If basketball is your dish, two of the main cogs in the team of the year — North Caroline — are Tommy Kearns and Pete Brennan. And to put the icing on the cake, the coach of the year is Frank McGuire and no more need be said.

Still fast of foot, are they now? Well, there's the undiluted Ron Delany, straight from Dublin, who holds the Olympic 1,500-meter championship and hasn't been beaten since leprechauns wore wings.

Brawn is There

The brawn still is there, too. Parry O'Brien is the world's only 61-foot shot putter and Harold Connolly is the whale with the hammer.

Hold on to your hat, but in skiing the slalom champion (giant slalom, naturally) the champion is Tommy Corcoran. The world's best diver is Mrs. Pat McCormick; the professional golfer of the year was Jackie Burke; the death-defying winner at Indianapolis was none other than Pat Flaherty—and an Irish setter won the Westchester Kennel Club Show.

Ah, how about boxing now? Well, Del Flanagan is the seventh ranking welterweight. And did you notice that Richard McTaggart, right from Erin, won the Olympic lightweight title, while his teammate, Frank Tiedt, was robbed in the welterweight finals although everybody said he was the best boxer in the games.

Charleroi Meets Sharon Tonight

Teams Clash in Semi-Final Brawl At Field House

Charleroi High's defense-minded basketballers will find themselves cast as underdogs for the first time this season when they meet Sharon tonight at the Pitt Field House in a semi-final game of the WPIAL Tournament.

The winner will challenge McKeesport next Wednesday for the coveted WPIAL crown.

Coach Henry Pennline's Cougars, who have won 24 of 25 games this campaign, have failed to impress the experts while posting two eyelash decisions over Derry Twp. and Washington in tourney play.

However the towering Cougars have displayed enough potential to keep their rating respectable. There's a pretty general feeling that the Charleroians haven't cut loose yet.

Real Possibility

If Pennline's boys play one of their better games tonight, then an upset is a distinct possibility if not a probability.

Sharon must rule the pre-game favorite, though, the Bengals have won 23 games in a row, hardly working up a sweat in any of them.

Admittedly Bud Laycock's Sharon quint was anything but impressive in spite of a 19 point tourney win over Scott the other night. Still the Bengals evidenced enough skill to convince everyone that they are of championship stature.

Thus tonight's game matches two teams which the experts feel haven't reached their tourney peak yet. And that's an unusual situation in view of the absolutely brilliant record owned by each club.

Height Edge

Charleroi will carry a height advantage into the game. The Cougars will open with Ollie Payne, 6-4; George Schoener, 6-4; Bob Boda, 6-2; Myron Pottios, 6-2; and Carl Witmyer, 6-1. In reserve will be Jimmy Chacko, 5-11.

All are seniors, but Payne, who is a junior, and Chacko, a sophomore.

Sharon will counter with John Fridley, 6-4; Mike Matta, 6-3½; Mark DuMars, 5-10; Pete Culp, 5-10; and Ed Winters, 6-0. The sixth man is Carl Northhaft, 5-10.

All are seniors but Winters, a junior.

Both teams stress defense, using a variety of defensive alignments.

Versatile Attack

On offense, Sharon seems to have the more versatile attack. The Bengals like to pass the ball around, injecting some fancy stuff into the act.

In the past, that fanciness has actually been Sharon's undoing on a couple of occasions. In the long run, though, it seems to pay off.

Both teams possess remarkable balance. There isn't a weak link on either quint. And the two clubs both have excellent "sixth" men.

Tonight's game, scheduled to start at 8 p. m., will probably lure a full house. It might easily be the best-played of the tourney.

Season records for two teams follow:

Cro-Ams Will Meet Tomorrow

Both the Cro-Ams juniors and seniors will meet Sunday evening at 7 o'clock in the Croatian Hall.

Spokesman Dick Saflin said that plans for the upcoming CFU basketball tournament will be discussed.

The event will be held March 22, 23 and 24.

Junior Spikers Lose to Carroll

Monessen Junior High volleyballers lived up to their coach's expectations yesterday, despite a 3-2 loss at Carroll Twp.

Said coach John (Corky) DeMillion:

"We knew we had an inexperienced club. We've had little time to work with the boys. Still they showed me a lot of desire and potential."

Monessen lost the first game at Carroll, 11-0. However the Junior Hounds bounced right back to win the next tussle by a 11-0 count.

Carroll won the third game, 11-9, but Monessen again rebounded to take an 11-7 verdict. The deciding game went to Carroll by an 11-9 score.

Kentucky Eliminates Pitt Five

But Panthers Go Down Fighting in NCAA Play

By JAMES R. RENNEISEN

LEXINGTON, Ky. (UP) — Coach Adolph Rupp's Kentucky Wildcats need only a victory over Michigan State tonight to qualify for their fourth trip to the site of the NCAA Basketball Tournament finals — and they returned from their three previous trips with the victory trophy.

Kentucky ranked third in the nation this week in the final ratings by the United Press Board of Coaches, gained the quarter-finals Friday night with a ragged, 98-92 victory over Pittsburgh. Michigan State, the Big Ten Representative, advanced by edging Notre Dame, 85-83.

The Kentucky - Michigan winner will play the winner of tonight's North Carolina-Syracuse game at Philadelphia in the semi-finals next Friday night at Kansas City.

Kentucky will have to figure a way to control the rebounding of Michigan State's husky center, John Green, and its two rangy forwards, Larry Hedden and George Ferguson. They controlled the backboards against Notre Dame. But ironically, it was Jack Quiggle, a native of South Bend, Ind., who scored the decisive field goals in the closing minutes for the Big Ten team.

The Wildcats also will have to throttle Michigan state's fast break. The Big Ten lads scored almost every time they zipped down the court in the second half. Five of the Spartans scored in double figures with Green tops at 20 points. John Smyth led Notre Dame's offense with 25.

Rupp's men probably will have to play better than they did against Pittsburgh. The Panthers gave the Wildcats and their 13,000 rooters a scare. Pitt trailed by 15 points late in the game but battled to within one point of Kentucky in the last six minutes before John Brewer sank four free throws for the home club.

John Cox, a sophomore forward, led Kentucky in scoring with 26 points but Pittsburgh's John Riser, who fouled out with three minutes to go, was high man in the game with 30.

Will Observe Wildlife Week March 17 to 23

"Homes for Wildlife."

That's the theme for 1957 National Wildlife Week, to be observed hereabouts and elsewhere March 17 to 23.

The three words printed above in quotation marks bespeak a conservation problem, according to Russell Woodward, Jr. who has been named National Wildlife Week Chairman for Westmoreland County.

The problem centers in the fact that our feathered and four-footed friends of the wild need homes to survive, and what people have done to wildlife habitat shouldn't happen to a dog. And as a matter of fact, it hasn't, because dogs can live in the back yards, garages, basements or living rooms of human houses, but wildlife can't.

Deer, bear, rabbits, squirrels, quail, grouse and other wild creatures require homes in the woods and fields and marshes in order to survive and rear their families. Even the fishes that are so dear to the heart of the angler need more than water to find a home.

If the homes are cut, burned, drained, silted or polluted, the result is obvious: No wildlife! It is, in fact, all too obvious in too much of America.

Stress Problem

That is the reason for having National Wildlife Week, according to Chairman Woodward. The purpose is to get more people thinking about conservation problems and fired up to do something about them. The Week has been sponsored annually since 1938 by the National Wildlife Federation of Washington, D. C., and its affiliated State federations and local conservation clubs.

Each year a special conservation problem is emphasized. This year it is the housing shortage for wildlife. Every citizen can find ways to make new wildlife homes, to restore wildlife habitat that has been destroyed, or to protect the existing habitat.

Assisting in the district promotion of National Wildlife Week is the Westmoreland County Sportsmen League.

Edison Rice, County League president, has quickly endorsed the observance, which was first proclaimed back in 1938 by the late president Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Seth L. Myers, of Sharon is state chairman.

Pirates Defeat Senators, 5 to 1

FORT MYERS, Fla. (UP)—The Pittsburgh Pirates, winningest team in the Grapefruit Leaague, go after their seventh victory today against the Kansas City Athletics.

The Pirates won their sixth game in seven starts Friday, whipping the Washington Senators, 5-1, at Orlando.

A pinch single by Lee Walls, with two out in the seventh inning, sparked a winning four-run rally by the Bucs.

Camilo Pascual, Senator right-hander, had gone all the way with a three-hit shutout in hand after retiring two men in the seventh, before the Bucs came alive.

Ronnie Kline started for the Pirates and worked three hitless innings. Benny Daniels, rookie up from Lincoln, Neb., allowed one hit in his three innings and Luis Arroyo, who gave up the one Washington run, yielded two hits.

Favorites Win In NCAA Cage Tourney Games

By TIM MORIARTY

North Carolina, Kansas, Kentucky and California are expected to walk off with regionaltitles in the NCAA Basketball Tournament tonight and thus qualify for the semifinals at Kansas City next weekend.

In the widely-scattered quarter-final pairings, North Carolina plays Syracuse at Philadelphia. Kansas runs into upstart Oklahoma City at Dallas, Kentucky meets Michigan State at Lexington, Ky., and California faces defending champion San Francisco at Corvallis, Ore.

North Carolina continued its march towards a possible showdown match with Kansas in the final by downing Canisius, 90-74, Friday night behind a brilliant 39-point performance by All-American Lennie Rosenbluth. It was the unbeaten Tar Heels' 29th straight victory of the season — tying an all-time college record.

Kansas Extended

Kansas, however, was extended into overtime before pulling out a 73-65 victory over Southern Methodist. All-American Wilt Chamberlain once again emerged as the Jayhawks' big gun by totaling 36 points — almost half of his team's total.

Kentucky also met surprisingly strong competition in scrambling to a 98-92 victory over Pittsburgh, while California reached the quarter-finals by routing Brigham Young, 86-59.

In other second round games, Gary Clark's 34 points carried Syracuse to a 75-71 triumph over Lafayette; Michigan State upset Notre Dame, 85-83, on two late field goals by Jack Quiggle; Oklahoma City's "Iron Men" shocked St. Louis, 75-66, and San Francisco opened its bid for its third straight NCAA title by whipping Idaho Statt, 66-51.

Pitt Stars Will Appear In Ozark Cage Tourney

Riser, Lazor, Brautigan Play for Washington Intervals

Pitt's finest all-time scoring combination of John Riser and Bob Lazor will appear in the sixth annual Ozarks Basketball Tournament next week at the MHS gym.

Both Riser and Lazor are listed on the roster of the Washington Intervals — always a strong tourney contender.

Another Panther player, Barry Brautigan, is also scheduled to play for the Intervals. Those three Pitt performers concluded their college career last night in the NCAA Tournament at Lexington, Ky.

The Washington team is loaded with other stars, too, including the brilliant James (Beanie) Gordon, undoubtedly the finest player in the WPIAL the past season.

Other Players

Completing the Interval roster will be Dick Kurtz, Gene Steratore, John Laneve, Jack Shultz and Frank Steratore.

Kurtz was quite an athlete at Wash High while Gene Steratore is noted for his grid exploits at Pitt. He's always quite a basketballer.

Another team has also entered the tournament's Junior Division, according to Director Tony Mascetta.

The club — Twin Coaches — will be made up of Rostraver High undergraduates.

Richard Sonafelt will coach the team. The roster includes Richard Shaffer, Jim Bush, Tom Daumit, Harry Hale, Don Jugan, Clyde Kuhn, Walter Karbowsky, Richard Carter, Charles Ahlborn and Charles Zolak.

Begins Tuesday

Tht Ozark tournament will begin next Tuesday and run every other night through the 29th.

The deadline for entries is tomorrow at midnight. As usual, the sponsoring Ozarks anticipate a whole flock of last-minute entries.

Ordinarily teams wait until the deadline to insure their strongest roster.

Standings show Jokers, 22-14; Trumps, 22-14; Diamonds, 18-18; Clubs, 17-19; Hearts, 16-20; and Spades, 13-23.

Parra Favored Over Delgado

LOS ANGELES (UP)—Ernesto Parra of Mexico City, the ranking Mexican featherweight contender, is a 5-4 favorite over Vince Delgado of Los Angeles tonight in their 10-round bout at Hollywood Legion Stadium. Parra has an 18-6-1 pro record compared with Delgado's 11-2-2 mark.

Ozarks to Meet Tomorrow at 1:30

The Monessen Ozarks will meet tomorrow at 1:30 p. m. in the Ravens Club.

All members are urged to attend. Final plans for next week's tournament will be formulated.

McKeesport Raps Ford City with Late Rally, 56-45

By UNITED PRESS

McKeesport's Tigers traded baskets with Ford City for three periods at the Pitt Field House Friday night, then ran away from the Glassers in the final period to post a 56-45 victory and move into the championship round of the WPIAL basketball tournament.

McKeesport, led, 43-41, after three periods of the tournament semifinal but they hit on the right defense in the fourth period and from then on it was easy. The Tigers scored 13 points in the final period while holding Ford City to four points.

McKeesport will meet the winner of tonight's Sharon-Charleroi semifinal at the Field House next Wednesday night for the WPIAL Class A championship.

A crowd of 4,763 fans, biggest turnout of the tournament, saw the McKeesport-Ford City game.

The victory was the 24th straight for the unbeaten Tigers, champions of Section 6. It was the third loss against 23 victories for Ford City, the Section 1 titlist.

The game was tied nine times. McKeesport led 11-10 after the first period and 29-28 at halftime.

John Allen and Lanny Van Eman paced the winners with 16 and 14 points, respectively. Gene Lazaroff and Jim Wingate each had 12 points for Ford City.

Steady pitching combined with timely hitting from catchers Hank Foiles and Harding Peterson, and infielders Bill Mazeroski and Johnny O'Brien, have given the Pirates a pre-season winning streak to be proud of . . . Scout Ray Welsh and first base coach Danny Murtaugh have been drilling the Bucs on the fine art of base running, with special emphasis on getting a good lead off base . . . Stocky Luis Arroyo is down to a svelte 175 pounds and turned in a three-inning no-run performance against the Philadelphia Phillies in his first outing on the mound . . . Hall-of-Fame Pie Traynor reports that Frank Thomas is an apt pupil. Pie's instructing both Thomas and Gene Freese on the "ins and outs" of the third baseman's job, stressing fielding a bunt and shifting feet.

Paul Smith, a service returnee, formerly of New Castle, Pa., and now of Wilkinsburg, has impressed Manager Bobby Bragan with his stick work. Says Bobby, "He'll stay, definitely. He will give us hitting strength on the bench to go along with Bob Skinner, and he also gives us outfield and first base protection." . . . Clyde King, former Brooklyn Dodger pitcher and now the manager of the Pirates' Hollywood farm club, spent a week in camp teaching the Buc hurlers the trick of a move to first base. Bob Friend has proven his best pupil so far, picking three men off first with his newly developed motion, and Luis Arroyo caught the fleet-footed Phillie Richie Ashburn on his first try . . . Team physician Dr. Joe Finegold has given all the Bucs, their wives and children polio shots.

Manager Bragan has announced he's sticking with his revolutionary line-up which he introduced last August against the New York Giants, putting his heavy hitters in the top spots. "When the season starts at Forbes Field on April 16 against the Giants, you're going to see Bill Virdon leading off, followed by Roberto Clemente, Lee Walls, Frank Thomas, Dale Long, etc.," said Bobby. Bragan has made a minor change in the "new order," however, with the pitcher batting eighth now instead of seventh.

Penn State, Pitt Bid for Lead In Mat Tourney

UNIVERSITY PARK, Pa. (UP)—Penn State and Pittsburgh appeared headed for a photo finish today for the third straight year as the Eastern Intercollegiate Wrestling Championships entered the semifinal round.

The host Lions held a slight edge as they ended the quarterfinal round yesterday with six survivors and 18 points. Pitt, which won the title by a bare point in each of the last two years, came out of the round with five survivors and 16 points.

Lehigh was right on the heels of the leaders with four survivors and 15 points.

Penn State and Pitt meet in only one weight in the semifinal round. State's Johnny Pepe, Eastern runnerup last year, will face Pitt's Ted Bienkowski in the 147 pound class.

Upsets were lacking in the quarterfinal action and still on deck were the four defending champions—Sid Nodland, 12, and John Johnson, 130, both of Penn State; Joe Gratto, 137, Lehigh, and Dave Johnson, 157, Pitt.

Other team standings: Brown, 12 points; Cornell and Syracuse, 10 each; Franklin and Marshall 9; Army, 6; Colgate and Harvard, 5 each; Columbia, Pennsylvania, Princeton, Rutgers, Springfield and Temple, 2 each.

Altoona Slips by Westmont

By BURTON W. SIGLIN

Altoona, Reading and McKeesport moved a step closer to the coveted state championship basketball trophy as the field in the Class "A" playoffs dwindled to 16.

Altoona retained its District 6 title by edging Westmont, 59-56, Friday night while Reading and McKeesport moved into the finals of their respective district tournaments. Reading dropped Boyertown 37-25 in a low scoring duel while McKeesport surged in the last period to down Ford City 56-45 and move into the finals of the WPIAL eliminations.

Reading now will meet Hanover at Hershey next Tuesday for the District 3 crown while McKeesport goes against the winner of tonight's Sharon-Charleroi match at Pittsburgh in the District 7 finals.

Another district title will be decided tonight when Erie Strong Vincent clashes with Grove City at Farrell for District 10 honors.

The District One title will be decided Monday night when Chester and Norristown collide at the Penn Palestra in Philadelphia.

Decide B Title

Six Class "B" titles were decided Friday night to cut the number of survivors in this classification to 12.- All district titlists have been named except in the WPIAL where Wampum and Shannock Valley meet next Tuesday at the Pitt Field House.

All 10 of the Class "C" district champions have been named with Foster Township winning in District 2 and Delaware Valley in District 12 to complete the roster.

Class "B" district champions named after Friday night's games included Darby (1); Ashley (2); Palmyra (3); Athens (4); Mercer (10) and Fountain Hill (11). Losing in the finals in their districts were Nether Providence, Duryea, Warwick Union, South Williamsport, Girard and Shenandoah.

The 16 Class "A" survivors are Chester, Norristown, Nanticoke, Reading, Hanover, Coal Township, Bedford, Altoona, Charleroi, Sharon, McKeesport, Pittsburgh Oliver, Clearfield, Erie Strong Vincent, Grove City, Allentown.

Geneva Students Work for Kadis

BEAVER FALLS, Pa. (UP)—Geneva College students will forsake fun and play next weekend and go to work for whomever will hire them.

Their wages will go to the Dick Kadis Fund.

The students have set aside next Friday and Saturday, March 22-23, as "Work Days for Dick Kadis." On those dates they will offer their services to any employer in the Beaver and Ohio Valleys.

They will wash cars, clean homes, pump gas, clerk in stores, and baby sit.

Charles O'Data and Frank Booker of the Geneva Student Senate, co-chairmen of the campaign, asked prospective employers to get in touch with the school and give job details.

Chestnut Good Against Cadilli

NEW YORK (UP)—ke Chestnut demanded a principal's berth today in the forthcoming featherweight title tournament instead of the alternate's post he earned Friday night by outpointing Gil Cadilli in their return television bout at Madison Square Garden.

Chestnut, 26-year-old son of a New York Central Pullman porter, turned the tables on speedy Cadilli of Los Angeles by sliding under the Californian's jabs and hooks with a smashing attack to body and head. There were no knockdowns.

Business and Industry

All-new DeSoto Has Many Big Changes and Startling Advances

You'll find many new changes and unusual advances in the 1957 DeSoto, sold along wth Plymouth, by Frank's Service Garage, 122 East Donner avenue in Monessen.

DeSoto, according to L. Irvng Woolson, President is offering a completely restyled and reengineered array of automobiles, a challenging new high of 15 individual models and body styles and the greatest total in company history.

The record number includes an altogether new model, the new lower-priced Firesweep, a sister car to the familiar Fireflight and Firedome models. This gives the DeSoto line an estimated 91 per cent coverage of the entire automobile market—excepting the so-called low price, small car field, its stated.

The line will also include, for the first time, a record number of four station wagons, the increasingly popular all-purpose family-business automobile, some with special new tires requiring no "spare". Additionally, the company plans producing double the amount of station wagons it produced in 1956 to satisfy the demands of the constantly increasing market for such vehicles, Mr. Woolson stated.

Mr. Woolson further states that the new De Sotos offer the ultimate in and they accent "ride", safety, general comfort and driver convenience. These are a host of important additions and improvements said to represent one of the industry's most extensive over-all automobile changes for 1957.

"Torsion-Aire suspension is but one of our many notable advances," says Mr. Woolson.

The company will offer what is declared to be the most foundly competitive product in its 26-year history, including increased horsepower for improved timing, control and response.

In fact, says Mr. Woolson, "We look upon horsepower as a very definite safety consideration when it's properly used and not abused merely as power for reckless or unregulated speeding."

All '57 De Sotos are lower (by five inches), longer appearing and roomier than any previous models, Mr. Woolson declared, and feature the greatest number of ever introduced in the company's and possibly and other automobile manufacturer's history.

Triple - range - button Torqueflite transmission of three forward speeds, a unique all-weather, conditioning system, all new engines, a greatly improved total contact braking system, plus nearly 35 percent more glass area are some other highlights.

"Everything considered," says J. B. Wagstaff, vice president in charge of sales, "De Soto will be offering consumers the most for the least, and what we consider to be the best buy in the medium price field. We believe our cars to be the very ultimate in beauty honestly feel there is no real comparison to our 1957 line."

Mr. Wagstaff further states that De Soto confidently expects to continue its consistently gaining public acceptance, its percentage gain in the national market and its even greater penetration in its price class. The new lower-priced 12-inch wheelbase Firesweep is expected to bring new volume sales.

He concludes by saying that DeSoto was measurably better off than industry average in 1956, the so-called "off" year, and that the company anticipates no decline in that pace but expects continuing improvement.

Take White's prepared paint sold at Forester's. Here is an acid-resistant paint for outside work really designed for a city like Monessen and the Valley, an industrial area where there is always acid working on paints.

You'll find White's prepared paint will last longer and make your home look better longer, too. It has been tested here and sold by Forester's for years.

Then there's O'Brien's Satin finish for walls or woodwork. You will want to get the interior of your home bright and cheerful looking and here's a finish that will do it. A lot of this work you can do yourself, too, for it's so easy to apply.

Drop in at Forester's, 910 Knox avenue, and see for yourself how many useful items for the home and garden are sold here.

John Says:

Nothing's so embarrassing as having to ask the customer how to open the hood—it's like telling him there weren't many fellas fool enough to buy that model.

3 Memorials

In loving memory of our dear father and grandfather W i l l i a m P. DeGrange, who died one year ago today, March 16, 1956.
How silently and sweetly you sleep,
The angels must have known
That you were meant for them
And claimed you as their own.
Did you feel our lonely ache?
Did you hear us mourn and cry?
Perhaps you did because we know
It's just farewell and not goodbye.
Sadly m i s s e d by Daughters, Sons, Daughters-in-law, Sons-in-law and Grandchildren.

In loving memory of our dear daughter and mother, Mrs. Mary Magdeline Matthews (Maggie) who died four years ago, March 15, 1953.
It is lonesome here without you
And sad the weary way
For life is not the same to us
Since you were called away,
Gone from us your smile,
Those carefree happy ways.
The heart that won so many friends
In by-gone happy days.
Sadly missed by Mother, Children, Brothers and Sisters

In loving memory of our dear s o n, Andrew J. Cook, who died 17 years ago tomorrow, March 17, 1940.
When life threatens to make us blue,
We cling to a memory to carry us through,
Feeling that somewhere you a r e standing by
Ready to help when you hear us cry.
And so dear son, your life of love
Is a precious treasure from Heaven above.
Your grave we tend with loving care
For part of our heart is buried there.
Sadly missed by parents, Mr. and Mrs. Noah Cook,

In loving memory of our dear husband and father, Mildridge (Bill) McFaddin, who died 3 years ago tomorrow, March 17, 1954.
Today our hearts are heavy,
Our thoughts are all of thee,
Oh! How we miss you, dear one,
No one but God can see.
Some say time heals an aching heart,
But, no, it isn't true,
For father, long years have passed,
And our hearts still ache for you.
Sadly missed by Wife, Sue McFaddin, Daughter, Gerry, and Son Robert.

Giraffe Born, Father Dies

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (UP)— A giraffe was born at the Cheyenne Mountain Zoo Friday. Four hours later, his father accidently died of strangulation.

The father, a five-year-old giraffe named Stretch, valued by the zoo at $5,000, tangled his antlers in the bars of a suspended feed trough. In his frantic struggle to free himself, he strangled.

Zoo Superintendent Cliff Myers, who delivered the five-feet tall baby giraffe at 11:20 a.m., found Stretch's body at 4 p.m.

Stretch not only sired the 75-pound baby, the first giraffe to be born on Cheyenne Mountain, but was expecting another heir by the other female giraffe in their pen.

Diets Going to Dogs

HOLLYWOOD (UP)— High living that came with a fat film part has forced one movie celebrity to go on a diet. Spike, 115-pound mongrel, who plays the title role in "Old Yeller" gained 10 pounds after shooting began on the film and had his dogmeat ration cut so he would look the same throughout the picture.

Local Tri-Hi-Y Members Attend Model UN Meet

The world is watching with interest the work of the United Nations as it moves to bring peace to troubled areas.

For the past several months Tri-Hi-Y Clubs of Pennsylvania have been discussing ideas for proposals and resolutions which their delegates are presenting this weekend to the State Y.M.C.A. Tri-Hi-Y Model United Nations Assembly.

Delegates from the Rostraver Township Chapter are Nancy Kopp and Lois Ahlborn.

Each delegate will prepare a special costume indicative of the country she represents and each has made an intensive study of that country to learn as much as possible concerning the language and customs and its position in the UN.

The local delegates attended a District United Nations Assembly at Charleroi to prepare for the Statewide Assembly. They plan to present the following proposal:

"That member nations of the UN form a council among all nations to form a better system of international education".

The fifth Pennsylvania Y. M. C. A. Model United Nations Assembly Program for Tri-Hi-Y gives each delegate an actual experience in understanding the intricate workings of tht UN and is considered a real aid in promoting world understanding among high school age students.

Heart Habits Cause Hypertension

By H. N. BUNDESEN, M. D.

We've made great strides in developing drugs to treat hypertension or high blood pressure. Yet, as is the case with so many diseases, we don't know exactly what causes it.

One theory is that high blood pressure actually may be the result of the heart adopting a "bad habit." Recent research appears to indicate that there may be a great deal of truth in this theory.

We know, of course, that emotions such as anger and fear can cause the heart to beat faster. You probably can feel your own heart beating at a faster pace after a fright.

After years of study, Dr. W. Horsely Grantt, and his associates at Johns Hopkins University, have found that the heart actually can "learn" to beat continually at a quickened tempo as the result of previous experiences.

Like any other muscle, the heart can learn and it can be conditioned. Dr. Grantt believes it forms habits more quickly than many other muscles and drops these habits with more difficulty.

In other words, past emotional memories prepare the heart for an act (such as fight or flight) that is no longer required.

The Johns Hopkins investigators found evidence indicating that high blood pressure as well as alterations in the heartbeat can be obtained this way.

Moreover, Dr. James W. McCubbin of the Cleveland Clinic Research Division has found that certain nerve endings in the great artery above the heart, and in two neck arteries, can learn to accept a new high blood pressure level as normal and act to maintain it at high level.

Thus, the heart itself might be responsible for continuing high blood pressure even after the original cause has ceased.

Studies are currently underway to determine whether certain drugs can prevent the heart from forming bad cardiac habits.

We think we are so smart, but it's just amazing what we still have to learn.

Question and Answer

W. D. Should a baby, just home from the hospital, have his crib mattress raised at the head?

Answer: Usually, the baby's bed should be level. However, when he has a cold, it is advantageous to lower the head of the bed in order that infected secretions can drain out of the nose and throat easily.
